PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

It is a delight to welcome the members of SHEAR back to Philadelphia, for the second year in a row. The past several years (to say nothing of the past several months) have been difficult times for those of us who work on college campuses, and for everybody connected to the world of the humanities. Now more than ever it is important to take the chance to gather together, share our research, and to participate in the energy that scholarly community can generate. I hope that each of you will take advantage of this SHEAR conference not only as an opportunity to connect with long-time friends and colleagues, but also to have conversations with members of SHEAR who you don't already know.

This year has been one of transition for SHEAR, in many ways. Our administrative home has shifted from the McNeil Center at the University of Pennsylvania to the Omohundro Institute at William & Mary. Everyone at SHEAR is grateful for the long partnership that we enjoyed with the McNeil Center, just as we are excited about the possibilities of our new partnership with the Omohundro Institute. This year we also have a new national conference coordinator, Erika Huckestein, who succeeded Robyn Lily Davis after her many years of service. Erika is an Assistant Teaching Professor of History at Widener University, and is an absolutely brilliant organizer. I'm deeply appreciative of all that she has done to put together a remarkable program for all of us.

Philadelphia is a familiar destination for many members of SHEAR, which is why serving on the Local Arrangements

Committee for this conference can be a particular challenge. This year's committee has done a spectacular job of bringing us to some new destinations around the city for our events, including the Kimmel Center for the Performing Arts (right across Broad Street) for our Thursday night reception and the Philadelphia Athenaeum for our Saturday reception. The Presidential Address and Award Ceremony on Saturday will take place at the American Philosophical Society. I would like to thank the incomparable Jen Manion for chairing this year's local arrangements committee, as well as all of the members of the committee who contributed so much to our schedule of events this year: Zara Anishanslin, Bruce Dorsey, Jim Downs, David Gary, Sally Gordon, Emma Hart, Beth Hessel, Brenna Holland, and Whitney Martinko. Many of them provided lists of specific local recommendations, which can be found in the program.

Particular thanks go to Michelle Craig McDonald for hosting us at the APS on Saturday evening, and to Beth Hessel for welcoming us to the newly renovated Athenaeum. Thanks are also due to Amherst College, the Massachusetts Historical Society, and the University of Michigan's William L. Clements Library for their sponsorship of this year's receptions. There are also four outstanding tours on offer this year. On Thursday, members can take part in tours of the Philadelphia Gayborhood and of sites related to religious diversity and the struggle for freedom. Friday offers a visit to the rare book room at the Central Branch of the Free Library of Philadelphia. And on Saturday, members can visit Carpenters' Hall, home to the First Continental Congress.

As for the program... well, just have a look at it. Program Committee Co-chairs Honor Sachs and Christina Snyder led a group that put together a program that puts on full display the richness of the scholarship that is currently under way on the early American republic. All of the members of the Program Committee—Zara Anishanslin, Ashley Cataldo, Alexander Chaparro-Silva, Samuel Davis, Angela Diaz, Michael Dickinson, Elizabeth Ellis, Jesse Gant, Katherine Grandjean, Scott Heerman, Hidetaka Hirota, Katherine Johnston, and Kariann Akemi Yokota—contributed time and talent to help assemble this outstanding program.

There are countless highlights on the program this year, including a wealth of sessions that point toward the upcoming 250th anniversaries associated with the American Revolution. I want to call your attention to two elements of the program in particular. The first, on Thursday afternoon, is a session organized in partnership with National History Day. No doubt there are current members of SHEAR who first caught the research bug while working on a National History Day project in middle school or high school. The second is a stream of panels running throughout the conference that deal with the question of how historians of early America can communicate with wider audiences. It's something that we all say we want to do, but these sessions promise to actually help us learn more about how to do it.

I hope that you will all join us for the official opening of the program on Thursday night with the Presidential Plenary, "The Thrill of the Old; or, Reframing Research on Early America." In my day job at the William Clements Library, I often give tours of the library to visitors who are not academics, and who have never before seen people doing archival research. I have come to realize that this lack of familiarity with what it is that humanities scholars actually do is central to many of the larger crises facing the humanities. Much of the intentional opposition to the humanities grows out of a refusal to see humanities disciplines as research-driven fields. In many cases, cuts in support for humanities research have presaged future reductions in funding in other areas. How can people who work on the early American republic—K-12 teachers, college and university faculty, museum and library professionals, and public historians—foreground the research that supports all of our work? What research methodologies do the members of SHEAR use? And how can we convey both the excitement of the work of research and the importance of the infrastructure that supports that research to a general audience? The plenary will feature four outstanding scholars who each do research on the Early Republic, yet all of their research work looks dramatically different. We are also fortunate to be joined by Rob Townshend, the longtime Director of the Humanities Indicators Project at the American Academy of Arts & Sciences. Nobody has done more research on public perceptions of the humanities in the U.S., and we are fortunate that he is able to join us.

The JER Roundtable on Saturday afternoon offers an extension of the thread taken up by the Presidential Plenary. If the general public does not always understand what people who research early America do, they also often have a mistaken impression of who we do research on. Namely, as a result of the way that many people have been taught early American history, they expect that scholars in the field mostly study men. This roundtable, “Women at the Center: Rethinking the Place of Women in the Early Republic,” will give the participants the opportunity to reflect on how the story of the Early Republic might be told differently.

Serena Zabin’s presidential address last year put us at the very beginning of SHEAR’s period, in March 1776. This year’s address, “Revolutionary Gothic: A Philadelphia Story,” will bring us to the tail end of our period, looking at how one writer from Philadelphia made a career out of telling the story of the American Revolution, and asking what we might learn from earlier modes of commemoration. After the address we will have the opportunity to celebrate the spectacular work of our colleagues as we award SHEAR's annual prizes.

SHEAR's commitment to not just supporting the work of new generations of scholars but also finding opportunities to involve those scholars in our organization's work is one of the most exciting things about being part of SHEAR. This year's program offers many opportunities for graduate students and early career scholars to meet one another as well as to engage with other members of SHEAR. Through the Graduate Research Seminars to introductory sessions with JER editors, early career scholars will have numerous opportunities to discuss their work. They will also have the chance to socialize, at the Graduate Student Lunch on Friday generously sponsored by the Library Company of Philadelphia's Program in African American History and the Early Career Mentorship Reception, sponsored by the Institute for Thomas Paine Studies at Iona University.

Serving as the president of SHEAR has been an honor and a privilege. It is also something that I cannot imagine having taken on without the incredible network of support that exists within SHEAR, from previous presidents to members of the Advisory Council and Nominations Committee to everyone involved with editing and producing the Journal of the Early Republic and The Pano. I want to thank all of them, as well as Cathy Kelly, Martha Howard, Laurel See, and the rest of the team at the Omohundro Institute, for making this year a pleasure. I look forward to seeing all of you in Philadelphia!

ABOUT SHEAR

Established in 1977, the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic is an association of scholars dedicated to exploring events and meanings of United States history between 1776 and 1861.

SHEAR's mission is to foster the study of the early republican period among professional historians, students, and the general public. It upholds the highest intellectual standards of the historical profession and encourages the broad diffusion of historical insights through all appropriate channels, including schools, museums, libraries, electronic media, public programming, archives, and publications. SHEAR cherishes a democratic ethos in scholarship and cultivates close, respectful, and productive exchanges between serious scholars at every level of experience and recognition.

SHEAR membership is open to all. Most members are professional historians employed in colleges, universities, museums, and historical parks and agencies, as well as independent scholars and graduate students.

The ideas and institutions of the United States' founding era are part of the cultural legacy of every American. The Society for Historians of the Early American Republic seeks to enrich that legacy with the deepest insights of historical research, combined with a spirit of intellectual democracy best expressed in ongoing communication with the public. For more information, please visit www.shear.org.

SHEAR PRIZES

SHEAR presents six awards after the Presidential Address on Saturday, July 20th.

The SHEAR Book Prize is awarded to an original monograph published in the previous year that deals with the period 1776-1861 in America.

The James H. Broussard Best First Book Prize is awarded to the best monograph by a new author published in the previous calendar year and dealing with any aspect of the history of the early American republic.

The Mary Kelley Prize in the History of Women, Gender, and Sexuality honors the best book published on the history of women, gender, or sexuality in the early American republic.

The James C. Bradford Biography Prize is awarded to the author of an original biography, broadly defined, of a person active during the early republic.

The Ralph D. Gray Article Prize honors the best original article published in the previous volume of the JER.

The SHEAR Dissertation Prize is presented in cooperation with the University of Virginia Press to an exceptional unpublished dissertation pertaining to the history of North America from 1776 to 1861.

The SHEAR Distinguished Service award recognizes generous and enduring service on behalf of the goals and programs of the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic. It recognizes the kind of commitment without which voluntary organizations such as SHEAR could not thrive. Since it was established in 2014, the award has been presented nine times.

WELCOME TO PHILADELPHIA

Welcome to Philadelphia for SHEAR 2024!

We are fortunate to be gathering in the heart of Center City with so much great food, nightlife, art, architecture, and history within walking distance. Be sure to get out of the conference hotel and enjoy the surrounding neighborhood! We have arranged for a variety of tours to help you explore including tours of the Philadelphia gayborhood, religious diversity in early Philadelphia in Old City, rare books collection at the Free Library of Philadelphia on the Parkway, and Carpenters' Hall. Attendees are all invited to the opening night reception at the Kimmel Center following the Thursday night plenary. Friday evening is free for people to venture out on their own. On Saturday evening, we will head to the American Philosophical Society for the Presidential Address and Awards Ceremony, followed by a reception at the Philadelphia Athenaeum. If only the Phillies were playing at home this weekend! Our local arrangements committee has shared some of their favorite spots for you as well and I'll be available all weekend to answer any questions you might have. Philadelphia has so much to offer – let us help you make the most of your time at SHEAR 2024!

CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Graduate Research Seminars, Wednesday 17 July.

Continuing SHEAR's long tradition of mentoring graduate students, senior scholars will lead research seminars for advanced graduate students and recent graduates, devoted to different scholarly topics in the history of the early United States and its world. To promote accessibility and broad participation, these will be held online before the conference opens.

Biography Writers' Workshop, Thursday 18 July.

Presenters will cover topics related to historical biography followed by breakout working groups that have read and will offer feedback on each other's projects.

Philly Gayborhood Tour: Telling LGBTQ Stories with Pride, Thursday 18 July.

Get under the skin of queer Philly. Discover the controversies, paradoxes, and hidden histories of the only formalized Gayborhood in the country. Let's talk and spill all that historical tea hunny! Led by a Beyond the Bell Tours co-founder. Tour begins at 11:00 am. $30 per person. Registration required.

Second-Book Writers' Workshop, Thursday 18 July.

Senior scholar mentors will each facilitate a workshop session for historians of the early American republic who are currently working on second book projects.

Tour: Religious Diversity and the Struggle for Freedom in the Nation's Birthplace, Thursday 18 July.

This tour of historic Philadelphia highlights the religious and cultural diversity of the city where the nation's founding documents were written. This tour covers sites in Old City Philadelphia and will include visits to several religious sites representing the presence of Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Freethinkers, and Muslims. The tour will be led by Dr. David Krueger, historian of American religion and executive director of the Dialogue Institute at Temple University. Tour begins at 2:00 pm. $25 per person. Registration required.

SHEAR Advisory Council, Thursday 18 July. The Advisory Council meets at 1:00 pm.

President's Plenary, Thursday 18 July. SHEAR's 45th annual conference opens at 5:00 pm with the President's Plenary, "The Thrill of the Old; or, Reframing Research on Early America," at the DoubleTree.

President's Plenary Reception, Thursday 18 July. Immediately following the President's Plenary, from 6:30 to 8:00 pm, Kimmel Center, 300 S. Broad Street, Philadelphia. Co-sponsored by the William L. Clements Library and Amherst College.

Perk Up with the JER Editors, Friday 19 July. Ronald Angelo Johnson and Johann Neem invite graduate students and early career scholars to meet for coffee and an informal early-morning conversation.

Rare Books Tour at the Parkway Central Branch, Free Library of Philadelphia, Friday 19 July. Since its opening in 1949, the Rare Book Department of the Philadelphia Free Library has offered free tours of its collections. Take a tour of this remarkable trove to see 5,000-year-old clay tablets, the raven that inspired Poe's famous poem, paintings by N.C Wyeth and Kate Greenaway, relics of Beatrix Potter and Charles Dickens, and an original engraving by Paul Revere. Tour led by Alison Freyermouth, head of the Rare Book Department. FREE. Registration required.

JER Editorial Board Meeting, Friday 19 July. The JER editorial board meets at 12:45 pm.

Graduate Student Lunch, Friday 19 July. Graduate students at the conference can meet for lunch and conversation from 1:00 to 2:00 pm at the Library Company of Philadelphia, 1314 Locust Street. Sponsored by the Library Company's Program in African American History. FREE. Registration required.

Public Historians Lunch, Friday 19 July. Join SHEAR's public historians to network and share creative approaches to interpreting and preserving the Early Republic as the U.S. 250th approaches. Sponsored by Saratoga 250. FREE. Registration required.

Early Career Mentorship Reception, Friday 19 July. Reception from 6:00 to 7:00 pm for those participating in the mentorship program or interested in participating in the future. Sponsored by the Institute for Thomas Paine Studies at Iona University. Registration required.

Boydston Women's Breakfast, Saturday 20 July. The women of SHEAR will gather from 7:30 to 9:00 am for their fifteenth annual breakfast honoring the life and career of long-time SHEAR member and supporter Jeanne Boydston. Sponsored by the Omohundro Institute. Tickets $35.00. Registration required.

Tour: Carpenters' Hall, Saturday 20 July. Join your fellow SHEAR attendees for a private tour of historic Carpenters' Hall, the site of the First Continental Congress in 1774, where delegates including George Washington, John Adams, Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry formed the colonial coalition that declared independence, fought the Revolution and founded a new nation. Tour led by Michael Norris, Carpenters' Company Executive Director. $25 per person. Registration required.

2025 Program Committee Meeting, Saturday 20 July. The Program Committee for the 2025 SHEAR conference in Providence, RI will meet at 12:45 pm.

Presidential Address, Saturday 20 July. The 2024 presidential address begins at 4:30 pm. SHEAR President Paul Erickson will discuss “Revolutionary Gothic: A Philadelphia Story” at the American Philosophical Society, 104 S. 5th Street, Philadelphia.

Awards Ceremony, Saturday 20 July. The SHEAR awards ceremony will immediately follow the Presidential Address.

Awards Reception, Saturday 20 July. The SHEAR Awards reception follows immediately after the awards ceremony at the Athenaeum of Philadelphia, 219 S. 6th Street. Co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Historical Society and the Athenaeum of Philadelphia.

Coffee & Business Meeting, Sunday 21 July. Join us at SHEAR's business meeting, open to all.

From Conference Paper to Journal Article Workshop, Thursday 8 August. The JER editors and peers will meet online to discuss feedback and plans for revising conference papers into publishable journal articles. Post-conference online workshop.

Women at the Center: Rethinking the Place of Women in the Early Republic, Saturday afternoon plenary

Despite an outpouring of new work on women, gender, and sexuality, women's history in the early republic is still dominated by decades-old understandings. Why? How does new work on women, gender, and sexuality change our understanding of the early republic? How can scholars construct a new narrative incorporating new work that recasts our views of women's history? In short, what does putting women at the center do to the history of the era of the early republic?

Composing the Early Republic: Music and Community-Making in Early America and Today

Music served as a form of belonging and distinction. This panel brings together scholars from history, musicology, and digital humanities to consider the ways in which musical traditions simultaneously contributed to the formation of the early republic while preserving the individual and collective sovereignty of people not included in that project.

Fourth Annual Conference Paper to Article Workshop, Summer 2024

The JER editors will convene a workshop to help scholars turn their conference papers into articles! Our goal is to demystify the process and provide every participant concrete advice on how they might revise their papers. This is a great opportunity for junior scholars. Contact the editors.

CALL FOR PAPERS
SHEAR
Providence, Rhode Island
17-20, July 2025

The 46th annual meeting of the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic will convene in Providence, Rhode Island from 17 to 20, July 2025.

As our members are well aware, 2025 marks the 250th anniversary of the beginning of the American Revolutionary War. As such, the Program Committee would like to encourage papers and panels that focus on the Revolutionary and early republic periods as sites of contestation, conflict, and contingency.

The Program Committee also invites proposals for sessions and papers exploring all aspects of the history and culture of an expansive early American republic, its transnational connections, and Indigenous nations.

We particularly encourage submissions that:

- Analyze conflicts over politics, economics, race, sovereignty, gender, rights and other values in the early republic.
- Explore the contested meanings and consequences of the American Revolution.
- Feature interdisciplinary methods and wide-ranging sources.
- Examine unfamiliar historical figures and re-examine familiar ones.
- Critically interrogate the archives that form the bases of our histories.
- Reflect the diversity of the past and expand narratives of the early American republic.
- Focus on pedagogy, the historical profession, or public history, including digital humanities and other alternative methodologies.

SHEAR is committed to inclusion and diversity and encourages panels that feature members of groups who have been historically underrepresented within the organization. Potential panelists should seek gendered, racial, institutional, interpretive, and career diversity, and each panel proposal should include a statement about how the panel furthers SHEAR's commitment to diversity.

Individual proposals will be considered, but the Program Committee prioritizes proposals for complete panels including a chair and commentator. The committee will consider proposals for traditional panels (3-4 papers plus chair and comment), roundtables (4-5 presenters plus chair/moderator), or other creative formats. In select cases, the committee may choose to alter or rearrange proposed panels and participants. Refer to the guidance available at <https://shear.org/annual-meeting/proposal-guidelines/> as you prepare your proposal.

All submissions should be filed as a single document (Word doc preferred), labeled with the first initial and surname of the contact person (e.g., “SmithJ2025”). All proposals must include:

- Panel title, one-paragraph description of panel topic, and one-paragraph panel diversity statement
- Email addresses and institutional affiliations (if applicable) for all participants
- Title and 100-word abstract for each paper
- One-page curriculum vitae for each participant, including chairs and commentators
- Indication of any needs for ADA accommodation
- Indication of any audio-visual requests (please request only if A/V is essential to a presentation)

The deadline for submission is December 1, 2024. Please submit your proposals by uploading your materials at <https://www.shear.org/call-for-papers/>.
